[Taglines]

“Making Finance More Interesting.”

Based on the challenge of creating an environment in which everyone, regardless of financial literacy, can invest with confidence, and on our track record of providing services from the customer's perspective, we hope to lower the hurdles of "finance" itself, and to make investing more anticipated and exciting for our customers.

We hope to lower the hurdles of "finance" itself, and to create a sense of anticipation and excitement about investing.

Based on this mission, vision, and values, we recognize that establishing corporate governance is essential for increasing corporate value, maximizing shareholder returns, and building good relationships with our stakeholders.

Specifically, the Company believes that it is important for the President and other Directors, etc. who are entrusted with the management of the Group to exercise self-discipline, make appropriate management decisions based on their responsibilities, and pursue profits through the business operated by the Group, to ensure financial soundness and improve its reliability, to actively disclose information in order to fulfill accountability, to establish an effective internal control system, and for the Audit Committee to maintain their independence and exercise sufficient auditing functions.

Reasons for Non-compliance with the Principles of the Corporate Governance Code

[Principle 2.4: Ensuring Diversity, Including Active Participation of Women]

The Company recognizes the importance of promoting diversity management as a cornerstone for improving corporate value, and has been conducting fair evaluations based on abilities, experience, business performance, etc., regardless of attributes such as gender and nationality, age, disability, etc., when making decisions on hiring and promotion.

The Company has not yet achieved sufficient diversity in its group, including promotion of women's activities. Since we have not set specific indicators and target levels for ensuring diversity, including women, we have clarified our human resource development policy and internal environment development policy for 2023, and have now set target indicators for the ratio of female workers in management positions, the wage difference between male and female workers, the ratio of female employees, the employment rate of persons with disabilities, and the ratio of foreign workers in the workforce.

In the future, we plan to respect diversity and provide opportunities for effective development (training, reskilling, and hiring) of human resources with diverse attributes.

[Supplementary Principles 3.1.3: Investment in human capital and intellectual property, etc.]

Based on the management philosophy of contributing to social and economic development through financial services, the Company established the ESG Promotion Committee in June 2021, built a system for discussing contributions to various issues surrounding sustainability, and is continuing efforts as a group.

The Committee promotes discussions on medium-term initiatives, clarifies important issues (materiality) in the social, environmental, and governance fields, and posts and discloses the details mainly on initiatives in business activities on the Company's website and in various disclosure materials. We believe that this is essential for the Group to achieve sustainable (cyclical) growth together with society and the environment through our financial business and system development business, and we are actively continuing our efforts in this area.

In addition, since the importance of proactive investment in human capital based on a management strategy is the cornerstone of corporate growth in terms of management strategy, we have clarified this in 2023 with the establishment of a human resource development policy and internal environment development policy and disclosed the identification of indicators and target setting from the perspective of ensuring diversity within the company, including the promotion of female advancement.

Furthermore, in the business domain of providing financial transaction services in the Internet environment, the personnel of system engineers who support pioneering system development and operation and their continuous recruitment are also important factors that determine a competitive advantage for further growth and expansion in the future. Going forward, the Company will strive to disclose easy-to-understand information from the perspective of consistency with its management strategy regarding the human capital aspect of securing DX human resources, an area that is becoming increasingly competitive worldwide, and the expansion of investment in intellectual property that can be accumulated in system development and expansion of investment services.

[Supplementary Principles 4.2.2: Effective supervision of investment in human capital and intellectual property]

At the ESG Promotion Committee established in June 2021, the Company decided on the policy on sustainability, promoted discussions on medium-term initiatives at the Committee, clarified important issues (materiality) in the social, environmental fields and governance, and started initiatives in business activities.

In addition, some details are disclosed on the Company's website and other published materials. From the perspective of improving the Group's corporate value over the medium to long term, we will continue to share awareness of issues and discuss issues to be addressed, such as addressing global environmental problems, giving consideration to employee health and the working environment, and promoting fair and appropriate transactions with business partners, while continuing to put them into practice.

Furthermore, the Company recognizes that the allocation of management resources, including investment in human capital and intellectual property, and the appropriate execution of business strategies and effective supervision by the Board of Directors will continue to be an issue.

Going forward, the Company plans to focus on formulating strategies and policies that will lead to increased corporate value related to human capital and intellectual property, as well as initiatives based on evaluations and analyses of related agenda items discussed in Board of Directors meetings, reported matters, etc.

[Principle 5.2: Formulation and announcement of management strategy based on cost of capital]

In order to appropriately determine opportunities for further expansion and growth of our core financial instruments business so that we can achieve sustainable growth and increase corporate value over the medium to long term, we conduct monthly analysis and comparison of various pieces of financial safety data for appropriate management of our main businesses, as well as the content of key management indicators for each business on a management accounting basis, in our monthly financial reports at the regular board of directors' meetings.

In addition, the Company confirms the content of key management indicators for each business on a managerial accounting basis, and holds subsequent discussions on the appropriate allocation of management resources based on an understanding of the cost of capital and an analysis of the status of earnings and capital efficiency, etc.

In addition, in business reports from subsidiaries, representatives of subsidiaries directly report the results of analysis of the current situation with respect to the earnings plan targets, including the target for the balance of assets under custody, which is directly related to the earnings plan, etc. Subsequently, discussions are held on revisions that contribute to appropriate allocation of management resources (selection and concentration), and guidance and advice are provided to subsidiaries, including reviews of investment targets for strengthening earnings capacity and broadly for management strategy. The Company provides guidance and advice to its subsidiaries, including a review of investment targets to strengthen profitability and management strategies in general. As a result, we have been able to promptly withdraw from unprofitable businesses (divisions) and terminate contracts with inefficient suppliers, and we believe that these actions have made a tangible contribution to improving the Group's performance.

We explain our approach to the optimal allocation of management resources based on this cost-of-capital analysis, as well as various capital policy target indicators such as ROE (return on equity) and DOE and their results, in our quarterly financial results presentation materials, medium-term management plan, and at financial results briefings, etc. However, in order to gain a deeper understanding from a wider range of investors and shareholders, we have also made it a policy to provide information on the cost of capital to our shareholders. We will continue to use various opportunities and media to provide easy-to-understand explanations.

Disclosure Based on Each Principle of the Corporate Governance Code

[Principle 1.4: Cross-Shareholdings]

The Company does not have cross-shareholdings. The Company may hold such shares if the Board of Directors determines that holding them could lead to an increase in the corporate value of the Company taking into consideration the growth potential, future potential, business relationships, and other factors of the investee company. If the Company strategically holds listed shares, the Board of Directors will annually examine the appropriateness of the holding of such shares from a medium- to long-term perspective (such as the significance of holding such shares, the business relationship with the entity to which such shares are strategically held, and the economic rationality of holding such shares).

In addition, the Board of Directors will comprehensively deliberate on whether the exercise of voting rights pertaining to such shares will contribute to the enhancement of the Company's corporate value by maintaining and strengthening the business and business relationship with the Group.

[Principle 1.7: Related-Party Transactions]

The Company, in principle, does not engage in related-party transactions when the Company engages in transactions with officers or major shareholders, etc., in accordance with the Rules for Related-Party Transactions.

However, when the need arises to engage in related-party transactions, the Company has clarified the necessary procedures, etc. so as not to harm the interests of the Company (and shareholders as a whole).

The Board of Directors verifies and deliberates on the necessity and appropriateness of such transactions and the reasonableness of the transaction terms based on sufficient grounds in advance and makes decisions based on the opinions of independent outside directors.

[Supplementary Principle 2.4.1: Diversity and Human Resource Development Policy and Internal Environment Development Policy]

The Company established the Human Resources Development Policy in 2023 as follows: The Traders Group will provide opportunities for training and re-skilling to each individual human resource from the perspective of developing human resources who can share the Group's values, that is, human resources who 'value' all the people involved, respect 'compliance' and 'diversity,' and continue to tackle challenges for change. This policy further clarifies the importance of diversity and the development program for core human resources.

In addition, the Group has set a target ratio for female employees and disclosed it in securities reports, etc. as a guideline for ensuring diversity in the Group to promote the active participation of female employees.

In addition, at the Group's overseas subsidiaries located in the People's Republic of China (Dalian) and Vietnam (Hanoi), core businesses such as system development are carried out by non-Japanese employees, and approximately a majority of the Group's total workforce is comprised of non-Japanese employees.

The Group as a whole is working to secure human resources on a global scale. In terms of the Group's hiring record, from the perspective of securing diverse abilities that are ready to be utilized, a large number of new employees are hired through hiring experienced personnel.

Going forward, we will continue to develop an environment in which diverse human resources can play active roles on a global scale in line with the growth and expansion of our business. In addition, as our policy for developing an internal environment, we have established that "The Traders Group will engage in well-being management in order to protect the safety of the workplace and the physical and mental health of each and every employee, and to create a state in which employees are socially satisfied."

In the future, we will strive to secure the sustainable diversity of human resources by developing a foundation through diversification of employment patterns and expansion of welfare benefits, enhancing internal training, raising awareness of respect for compliance such as harassment prevention measures, and fostering trust through regular personnel interviews.
